

POLYCOR

OUR STONE. YOUR IDEAS.

Hello,

Here is the procedure to import the material library into 3ds Max.

On a computer with 3ds Max (2016 and later) and with an active license of V-Ray Next for 3ds Max (3.6 and later):

1. Unzip the ".zip" archive into the folder of your choice (For example, the materiallibraries of your project).
2. Open 3ds Max.
3. Make sure that the renderer is V-Ray Next by following the next steps Rendering > Render setup... > Renderer: V-Ray Next.
4. Open the material editor, Rendering > Material Editor > Slate Material Editor.
5. Under Material/Map Browser, click on Material/Map Browser Options > Open Material Library...
6. Navigate to the folder where you unzipped the material library and select the Polycor.mat file. You can also only select the .mat file of every specific stone and finish.

Materials will then be available in the project and may be assigned to surfaces.

Please note.

Materials are to scale on a 48 in. x 48 in. surface. Adjustments could be required based on dimensions of the product.

Materials are set to be true to the actual product in a scene without gamma correction. A scene with gamma correction will require some adjustments of colors.

Without an active license of V-Ray Next for 3ds Max on the computer, the material library will appear empty in the Slate Material Editor.

The following are rendered images of our material with properly adjusted lighting parameters.
